Final Stages Today on Asia Conference

By JAMES D. WHITE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — American's largest conference on Asia today entered its final stages after a business urged American "reappraisal" of policy toward Communist China.

The sixth national conference of UNESCO meeting here since Wednesday to consider how to improve relations with Asia heard Burma's ambassador in Washington U. Thant, assert:

"No one in Asia except two or three leaders comes anywhere near to sharing the American attitude towards Peking."

"To us uncommitted countries, it is difficult to understand your attitude."

"No one believes that diplomatic recognition and admission to the United Nations would transform the Peking overnight into a cooperative regime. The question is what dangers and disadvantages might be avoided."

By excluding Red China from the U. S. he said, "one damages not Peking, but the United Nations, which is thereby ruled out as an effective instrument of international reconciliation."

He charged that the American attitude stems from the isolationism of the 19th century and "makes no sense for the deeply involved United States in the middle of the 20th century."

"The plain fact," he asserted, "is that all of the countries of Asia, with the exception of China, North Korea and North Vietnam, are not Communist and are not likely to become Communist so long as their economic and political stability is maintained and promoted."

He said the United States has not only inspired most of the revolution in Asia but plays a "very significant role" in maintaining Asian stability and the "closest cooperation" is essential.

But he said America's "equivocal" attitude toward the colonialism that remains, its "failure to distinguish between nationalism and communism are mainly responsible for the present lack of warmth in Asian-American relations."

The conference, considering the broad question "Asia and the United States: what the American citizen can do to promote mutual understanding and cooperation" spent yesterday and this morning in work sessions and group discussions on how Asian and Western relations may be improved through the arts, sciences, and communications.

The impact of science on Asia raises new social problems which have to be carefully considered in the extension of scientific aid, one group concluded.

And a panel considering communications agreed that it's not enough to step up the flow of news back and forth to Asia—it should be more meaningful news, written by better trained correspondents on both sides.

The conference was to end today after final reports from the various panels and an address by Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, India's high commissioner to the United Kingdom.

Cancer Claims L. R. Physician

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Dr. R. E. McLochlin, Little Rock physician and surgeon, died at St. Vincent's Infirmary today of cancer — a disease he learned he had as a result of an exhibit at the meeting of the Arkansas Medical Society last April.

Dr. McLochlin took an examination at an exhibit set up at the convention to encourage physicians to follow their own advice and have frequent checkups.

The examination disclosed the possible presence of cancer — a tentative diagnosis confirmed by subsequent thorough tests.

Despite the presence of the inoperable tumor in a lung, Dr. McLochlin continued his practice with frequent occasional pauses for treatment until he entered the hospital in his final illness about two weeks ago.

Dr. McLochlin was born on a farm near Logansport, Ind. He was 53 years old.

HIGH IN THE SADDLE—Mounted on their thoroughbred racing camels, these tough Bedouins prepare to move out on patrol duty along the borders of Jordan. Despite the modern weapons of defense which Jordan has obtained, the Camel Corps of its army carries on its job of guarding the bleak desert frontier. Capable of resisting thirst and hunger almost as well as their mounts, the "desert cowboys" claim that they can shoot an enemy down at 400 yards while riding at a gallop.

U. S. Flatly Rejects Mr. Khrushchev

WASHINGTON (INS) — The U. S. flatly rejected a new bid by Soviet Party Boss Nikita S. Khrushchev for a "summit" meeting between resident Eisenhower and Russian leaders to discuss world differences.

The state department said that high level meetings "of any kind" can be entered in by the U. S. only if there is prior indication that real agreements will result.

The department said there has been no indication by Khrushchev that the Kremlin has any intention of honoring "any new agreements to settle world tensions any more than the past, which were quickly broken."

In the first official pronouncement of the U. S. position relative to the bid for a meeting with the U. S. made by Khrushchev in his speech on the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution the state department said:

"With respect to his (Khrushchev's) suggestion of a high level meeting between the U. S. and the USSR to settle outstanding problems, we have emphasized on every occasion that high level meetings of any kind are desirable only if there are reasonable grounds of expecting they would bring beneficial results and that the responsible and interested countries would share in them."

Young Demos Open Meet in Controversy

RENO (AP) — The Young Democrats' national convention plunged into sharply worded controversy today over advocating admission of Red China to the United Nations.

Opponents declared they would carry their fight to the convention floor to override the qualified expression recommended by the resolutions committee, 13 to 8.

The resolution begins: "We subscribe to the doctrine that diplomatic recognition does not necessarily constitute approval of a regime."

"Therefore, we propose that the United States withdraw its opposition to Red China's admission to the United Nations provided that China release all Americans now held prisoner and agree to the independence and territorial integrity of Formosa."

James T. Heavay of San Francisco, leading the fight for committee adoption last night, termed the present American policy unrealistic. He said there has been considerable pressure from businessmen in San Francisco, Los Angeles and Seattle to open trade with Red China.

Paul M. Nussbaum of West Haverhill, Md., opposed the resolution as "a cheap political stunt that will only degrade United States leadership in the United Nations."

Arkansas Heads
Dental Association

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Dr. W. R. Alquist of Little Rock yesterday took over as 99th president of the American Dental Association. At 41 he is the youngest man ever elected to the presidency of the 100,000-member group and also is the first Arkansan to hold the office.

Shows Hard Work Does Pay Off

WYNNE (UP)—Felix Agre will tell you that hard work pays off even when you get in trouble with the police.

Agre a Mexican national, was arrested at Parkin following a knife fight with another Mexican. Trying to fingerprint him, officers found he had worked so hard at picking cotton that his fingerprints were temporarily worn off.

Integration Problem Threat to Education

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A Tennessee educator calls differences over integration a threat to the progress of public education.

Dr. Henry H. Hill, president of George Peabody College for Teachers at Nashville, Tenn., told a general session of the Arkansas Education Association's annual convention last night that integration controversies might even "sound an educational retreat."

"The enhancement in value and scope of our public school system is more important than the precise method of living with the Supreme Court desegregation decision," Dr. Hill declared.

He said he was willing to "sacrifice some of my personal preferences in order to keep that cornerstone."

Dr. Hill touched only briefly on the integration dispute in a speech titled "What's Right With Our Schools."

He said some of the "right things" were unrestricted opportunities for securing an education, attractive schools, extensive curricula, high quality of educational institutions, comparatively low school expenses and promotion of physical and moral development of students.

Dr. Hill once was superintendent of schools at Walnut Ridge.

The AEA's two-day convention ends today.

Segregationist May Contest Vote

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — Segregationist candidate H. H. Crow, defeated in his race for a position on the new city manager board of directors, said yesterday he wants a recount of several ballot boxes.

Crow was narrowly defeated by Leo H. Griffin, a candidate backed by the Good Government committee.

The Little Rock board of election commissioners said they will approve a recount, as long as Crow stands the expense.

The commissioners were scheduled to meet today and certify the election returns.

Ingrid's Daughter Won't Be Involved

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — "I don't want to become involved in this in any way," says Jennie Ann Lindstrom of the Separation granted in Italy yesterday to her mother, Ingrid Bergman, and Roberto Rossellini.

Mistake Ends a Murder Trial

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A murder case ended in a mistrial in suburban Clayton when a court clerk handed the notes of Circuit Judge Franklin Ferriss to the jury by mistake.

The jury had deliberated two hours in the case of Herschel O. Courtney, 51, a carpenter charged with second-degree murder in the shooting of his wife two years ago.

After the jury went to dinner, the court clerk handed it a document he thought contained the judge's formal instructions.

It proved to be the judge's notes. He declared a mistrial.

Killian Moves Into Job of Big Problems

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. James R. Killian is moving from cloistered university life into one of the sharpest controversies, and some of the knottiest problems Washington has seen in many years.

Sitting on the right hand of President Eisenhower as "special assistant to the president for science and technology," the 53-year-old head of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology will find he also is concerned directly or indirectly with such matters as these:

1. Clamoring criticism from people in and out of Congress who demand to know (a) why we are supposedly behind Russia in the missile weapon field; (b) why Russia is ahead in the satellite launching business; (c) what is going to be done about it.

2. Money—should more be spent for military scientific projects?

3. The rivalry of the individual armed forces in weaponry, which Eisenhower calls "alleged interservice competition."

Killian is no stranger to Washington activities, having served on an Army science advisory panel in 1951 and on a number of national foundation and scholarship boards.

He comes to Washington calmly. But he said in a statement at Cambridge, Mass., last night that "I shall move as rapidly as possible to marshal the best scientific and engineering judgment and creative talent in the United States and to make it available to the President for the formulation of national policy which involves science and technology."

Killian said, too, that "a very strong scientific advisory group is an essential part of the plan, and the recruiting of this group will proceed with the utmost dispatch."

Did Eisenhower's announcement last night on the now set-up for science mean that a "leak" with substantial power is to oversee the missile and earth satellite programs?

At one point in the President's address the language suggested the Killian might be such a czar. He said Killian, aided by a strong advisory group of outstanding experts, "will have the active responsibility of helping me follow through on the program."

Eisenhower said also that Dr. Killian "will see to it that projects which experts believe have the best possibilities 'shall advance with the utmost speed' and that Killian 'will make sure' that the best talent and all resources are applied to high-priority projects."

But then Eisenhower also said: "In the Defense Department is an official, directly responsible to the secretary, in charge of missile development. I have directed that the secretary make certain that the guided missile director is clothed with all the authority that the secretary himself possesses in this field, so that no administrative or interservice block can occur."

Although Eisenhower mentioned no names, it was apparent he was talking of William M. Holladay, special assistant for guided missile matters to Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy.

Planing Plant at Benton Burns

BENTON (UP) — Fire of undetermined origin gutted a planing mill last night leaving only a steam power tool unit unburned.

Woodrow Jones, president of the Jones Furniture Manufacturing Co., which owned the mill, said it was unable to make an early damage estimate.

Workers had left the building shortly before flames were discovered. The roof, then walls of the mill collapsed as firemen poured water into the blaze. The firemen saved a lumber storage bin nearby by playing water on it. The power unit was enclosed by a brick wall.

Sputnik Is Now Everyday Word to Americans

By THOMAS P. WHITNEY
AP Foreign News Analyst

Six weeks ago few Americans had heard the word Sputnik. Today it's on the way into the dictionaries, as one of the Russian language's rare contributions to English.

In Russian, Sputnik means satellite in an astronomical sense (thus, the moon is a Sputnik of the earth) as well as in the sense of an artificial satellite. But in English all Sputniks are artificial.

The Russian word Sputnik also means a traveling companion. The Russian prefix "S" means "with." The word "Put" pronounced "pool" means road way or path. The suffix "nik" is commonly used to make a noun from a general root — and give it a diminutive sense.

The Russian word "Sputnik" doesn't seem to have caught on as well. This is the given name and the name of the breed of dog common in Russia and Siberia. In a more general sense Laika — derived from "lai" meaning bark — is approximately equivalent to the English "bow-wow" and can be applied to any dog.

One Russian word in English to stay is vodka. It literally translates as "little water." Vodka is the Russian word for water.

TOUGH AND TIRED—Tire marks strike the face of 80-year-old Charles House like a brand as he waits impatiently for further medical treatment at Colorado General Hospital in Denver. The retired Illinois farmer was run over by his own car while he was pushing it. Except for the livid abrasions left by the tire he apparently suffered no serious injury. The tough, wiry octogenarian is being held at the hospital for observation.

Took 2 Sputniks to Force Ike's Hand

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — It took two Sputniks and their stunning effect on American thinking to drive the Eisenhower administration into a rush to keep abreast—or perhaps get ahead—of the Russians.

In his nationwide talk last night President Eisenhower outlined a program to speed work in missiles, some secret items, and scientific and technological developments for national defense.

The question running around Washington before the broadcast was: will he talk in generalities, as he has so many times, or will he get down to cases and offer some action?

He proposed action. Unless he had "done so," there probably would have been broad national disappointment and protest.

He said some "sternly demanding facts" require "new action." "This immediately raises a question which may prove embarrassing to the administration. Why wasn't this action taken until after the Sputniks spun across the sky?"

"The answer may come from a Senate investigation later this month."

There was no indication Eisenhower planned either the talk or the action until after Oct. 4 when the Russians shot their first Sputnik aloft and a badly disturbed and bewildered country began to ask: How come the Russians could do this first?

Then Eisenhower announced he would talk next week, one of several talks. But last Sunday the Russians sent their second and much bigger earth satellite skyward. Eisenhower decided to talk a week sooner.

The Sputniks circling the earth were spectacular testimony to Russian progress in science and technology. But it was the implication behind the Sputniks that was sinister and dangerous.

To get the Sputniks aloft meant perhaps the Russians had developed a special rocket fuel and an intercontinental missile, which, when equipped with a hydrogen warhead, could blackmail the rest of the world.

In his talk Eisenhower listed an impressive number of new weapons, both missile and nuclear, which this country has in its arsenal. He said he thought overall Allied military strength was greater than communism's.

But he admitted:

- "We frankly recognize that the Soviets are building up types of power that could, if we were attacked, damage us seriously."
- "The Soviets are quite likely ahead in some missile and special areas, and are obviously ahead of us in satellite development."

The talk revealed the administration had not been doing all it could to push missile and other developments. Eisenhower said he had been getting the best scientific advice on an informal basis.

His program now calls for marshaling that advice and at the same time sweeping aside any blocks in the road, such as Army-Navy-Air Force squabbles over which service should be doing what.

League to File Financial Data

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Urban League of Greater Little Rock decided at a board meeting yesterday to file a report of its financial position and other data in compliance with a new Little Rock ordinance.

The league, which had been given until Nov. 20 to file, said it would submit the report to the city clerk within a few days.

New Industry Comes Here, in Plunkett Bldg.

The Wire Products Company of Holland, Mich., announces today their decision to establish a branch manufacturing plant in Hope for the production of inner-spring unit for mattresses, box springs, and other related items. The company will occupy the building formerly used by the Plunkett-Jarrell Grocer Co.

"This decision was reached after more than two years spent investigating communities in several states. The presentation made by the Hope Chamber of Commerce, Arkansas Industrial Development Commission, and others, plus the facilities and civic atmosphere found in Hope, promoted this action," said Henry A. Geerds and Earl Regains, partners in this plant.

"Hope seems to be ideally located for the further development and customer acceptance of our products in the Southwest part of the United States. We have been engaged in the manufacture of these products in our Michigan plant for the past 10 years."

Mr. Geerds has stated that they contemplate the starting of production within the next six months; however, the actual move to Hope will start in December of this year.

Friends Say Ingrid Won't Marry Again

ROME (UP)—Friends of Ingrid Bergman said today she was through with marriage forever and would head for an independent middle age like that of Greta Garbo, her Swedish forerunner.

For Roberto Rossellini the future was not so simple. He has been reported involved with Sonia Des Gupta, the wife of an Indian movie executive, but he lives in a land of no divorce.

Speculation was that the couple would seek a quick divorce in Mexico ending the marriage-by-proxy in Juarez, Mexico, on May 24, 1950, which legalized their torrid romance.

The legal separation the couple obtained in 50 minutes before a Rome magistrate Thursday was to all intents and purposes the end of the marriage. Italy does not grant divorces but in some instances recognizes them.

Rossellini divorced his first wife, Marcella de Marchis, in Austria and it was recognized by the Turin Court of Appeals on Jan. 11, 1950, after a legal battle.

It was announced in Hollywood that Ingrid would return to the U. S. movie capital in February for her first American picture in seven years. Miss Bergman will make "The Inn of Eight Happiness" for 20th Century Fox.

She will go to London Monday to start a film with Cary Grant. Ingrid got the children, seven-year-old Roberto and five-year-old twins Isola and Isabella, but agreed that Rossellini could see them any time he wanted. She also agreed to educate them in Europe.

A high Vatican source said meanwhile the Bergman-Rossellini legal separation was the logical end of "a match not blessed by God."

The Roman Catholic Church never recognized the marriage as valid because they had obtained divorces.

Salvation Army Started 93 Years Ago

From a very humble beginning 93 years ago in the slums of London, England today the Salvation Army's services to humanity circles the world.

Its 250 different programs and services are available to the people of 65 countries and colonies of the world. An international army of 35,000 trained officers and thousands of volunteer workers make this possible.

Trouble is the business of the Salvation Army and it might be a parolee from prison seeking a new life, an expectant mother, an alcoholic or a homeless wanderer seeking a night's lodging. None are refused help.

Work of the Salvation Army depends on generous contributions from the public. Monday the organization will start its drive in Hempstead. Your contribution will help the Salvation Army continue its work.

State Receives First Report of a 'Saucer'

By the Associated Press

Arkansas got its first report of a "flying saucer" yesterday — two of them from widely separated points.

Reassured by reports from Texas of a bright light that caused automobile engines to stall, Mrs. A. F. Simmons of Camden said that she and her husband saw such a light about 10 p. m. Oct. 14 as they were driving on U. S. Highway 79 between Pine Bluff and Stuttgart.

She said the light was extremely bright, about the size of a washtub.

Mrs. Simmons said that their car was drawn to the side of the road as if by magnetic force and the engine died and the lights went out for about four minutes.

She said another car was affected by the light but that she and her husband did not get to talk to the driver of the other car. Mrs. Simmons said she kept quiet about the incident until the Texas reports came out because the story seemed "too fantastic."

Roman Hannah, a Negro farm worker, said he saw no lights but heard a high-pitched whistle overhead yesterday. Hannah said he was sitting in his car in a field near Scott in Pulaski County when he heard the whistle which gradually grew louder.

He said the engine of the car was idling but it died when the whistle was directly overhead. Another field hand heard the whistle too, Hannah reported.

Following a wave of reported sightings of unidentified objects, the Air Force announced yesterday that its intensive checking during the past 10 years had turned up no evidence of flying saucers or other extra-terrestrial vehicles.

In a letter received by a Little Rock television station (KTHV) today Mrs. Iva Moran of Monticello said she saw a bright object that had the shape of a "huge catfish" on Nov. 1.

Mrs. Moran said the object arose from behind a black cloud behind which the sun had set between 5 p. m. and 6 p. m. She said she watched the "noiseless object" until it disappeared from view.

A Malvern woman reported to the radio station (KBOK) there that she saw a bright yellow object larger than the moon for nearly 30 seconds about 7:30 a. m. today.

Miss Amanda Norwood said she looked away from the object momentarily. When she looked again, she said, three black spots were visible on the slow-moving object. Miss Norwood said the object disappeared after she finished telephoning the radio station about it.

Girl, 6, Given Good Chance to Recover

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — A six-year-old Fort Smith girl, for whom Christmas came in October, was given a good chance for survival today following yesterday's delicate heart operation.

Deborah June Newman, underweight 24-hour operation yesterday to close an abnormally developed artery. She had been given only about a 50-50 chance of coming through the operation, at the University of Arkansas Medical Center.

The child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Newman, gave her a Christmas party in October, was given a good chance for survival today following yesterday's delicate heart operation.

Deborah's condition stemmed from a duct which normally closes shortly after birth. But in her case it had never closed.

Test Vehicle If Fired in Florida

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Defense Department said today a test vehicle was fired from the Cape Canaveral, Fla. missile test center today.

While those in the area of the shot believed the missile was a Bormar, an Air Force long-range anti-aircraft missile, the Defense Department said it was not a Bormar.

A morning fog hung over the area and watching newsmen got only a brief glimpse of the rocket.

In an earlier test of a Bormar, the Air Force announced that the jet-powered, supersonic missile climbed more than 60,000 feet, hunted down and destroyed a dummy bomber more than 100 miles away.

There have been reports that the Allies and the Navy, both intercontinental ballistic missiles, are being readied for test flights.

Navyaho was hoisted onto a launching pad last night and was clearly visible in the darkness from several miles away. A shooting appeared imminent when debris was cleared out of the area.

Later, the searchlight went out. This morning the Navyaho was gone.

CHAPTER XXVIII

Bluet Sharadin put the dun over the low edge of rimrock and dropped 15 feet down a talus slope which leveled off in the grass of the pasture floor.

Yonder Sam McLaw, holding a brass-bound carbine, hovered over a bulthered steer. Bluet reined in beside him.

"McLaws, the thirty thieves are slow-eking me out of business," he said in the hot breath of anger.

Sam, a slab-thighed, short man with a rust-colored mustache and impetuous, cocked his head, listened for danger. "Another rider comin'," he said, putting himself directly in front of Bluet.

A horse, breathing hard, labored into the clear and both McLaws and Bluet eased their hands from their guns. This was another of the Block S patrol which McLaws' shots were calling in.

Bluet tore his gaze from the slaughtered beef, tossing his head toward the camp of the nesters. "McLaws, will you ride along? The choice is your own."

Sam McLaws turned his bearded face toward the ascending smoke spiral. "Up in them roughs? We'll find the Brays!"

Bluet nodded; a steady wrath rolling his veins. "I do not give you an order to come. One of us may not return."

Bluet Sharadin wanted this to be his own settlement. He was confident, and in his confidence he saw no cause to send his crew into a fight and thus bring about a defeat.

Grinly McLaws read Bluet through. Administration came slowly alive and he felt a flush of shame as he remembered his disloyalty to this brand for which he worked. He flung himself into saddle. They motioned the newly arrived Block S hand to stay behind with the carcass. Others, including Kains, might arrive at any moment.

Bluet led the way upward over an ascending slope which bore no marked trail.

They climbed a break in the rimrock and so came to a level crest 200 feet higher than the floor where their beef lay. Here pine grew thickly to the edge of the rim and through their aisles Bluet spied a rough camp 100 yards beyond. He counted quickly eight men hunkered about the fire. Beyond these stood their wagons with stained and gray canvas sagging over bent wagon bows. There would probably be more men; certainly Bray would not leave this camp without sentries.

The command to halt caught them a bare 50 feet from the fire. Bluet paid no attention. He rode the dun, stolidly up to the fire, his eyes flickering with wrath he could not control as he looked on a quarter of beef that lay on a butchering block. When he finally tore his gaze loose he turned squarely to Low Bray standing in a shudder before the wagon.

Bray's face was calous, his mobile, the whites of his eyes bloodshot. His slight, straw-headed son sat on a fallen log beside him.

"Don't try anything crazy," Bray warned. "There's rifle trained on your backs."

"I am looking for the man who would let my beef spoil in the sun."

A faint leer broke on Bray's mouth and Bluet knew now they had deliberately marked their trail across the pocket and had been waiting for this. Momentarily Bray's eyes flicked sideways. "My son's your man," he said harshly. "But I'll answer for him."

"Hold it!" Dave said before McLaws could break loose. "It would pay us to be waiting when they hit our grass. There's only one way to get them."

Two Are Held on Charge of Dynamiting

CLINTON, Tenn. (AP) — Two young men who said they had been offered $500 to dynamite integrated Clinton High School are in jail on charges of conspiring to dynamite and illegal possession of explosive.

Avon Nolan, 19, and Clifford Lowe, 20, were jailed in lieu of $4,000 bond each yesterday after Sheriff Glad Woodward of Anderson County uncovered a plot to damage the school where five Negro pupils are enrolled.

The two men told Woodward they were to receive the money from a third man who said it would be provided by a source in Nashville.

The sheriff said he was seeking the third man and checking on any possible connection between the plot and the dynamiting of a Nashville grammar school when that city began integration.

Woodward said Nolan and Lowe told him they abandoned a plan to set off the dynamite charge in the high school's coal bin last September because they were afraid someone would be killed.

two trails off that rock heap for wagons. One would be Horseshed, the other any Hollow. Set your scouts out to make sure which way they move."

"You mean you ain't bustin' after them?"

"How many men do you figure they'd knock down on that climb? He drove his cold, logical points hard at Kains. "If you rind them on the rimrock Block S will never outlive its reputation as a killer outfit. On the other hand if you burn them down when they hit Block S grass you'll reverse the order. They'll make their grab tonight. You can count on it. Lou Bray threw it up to me in Wolf Creek."

Kains paced with his hands knotted into fists and his thick, unreadable face turned toward the escarpment.

"Go fetch the crew," he ordered McLaws. "But we won't do a thing until Bray moves. He's only got two trails open — and we'll slam the lead to them when they make up their minds."

Ever afterwards Dave wondered at this decision of Kains. He had anticipated Kains would ignore his logic, or at least argue out of pure stubbornness. Yet the man had supported him.

"While you're keeping' watch I'll move Prole off Piny Hollow."

"You sure you got the backbone for it?"

Dave felt his blood quicken as he stared at Kains. "When you see the fire from Prole's shack you'll have your answer to that."

"Good boy!" Kains laughed. "When the truth hit Dave it lightened the hard core of anger inside his belly. He had cured, telling Kains his plans. He suspected he would not only face Prole tonight but a hidden gun or two that would be difficult to explain.

Morgan was close enough to hear the pulsing echoes of McLaws' three shots though he could see little of the valley from the craggy eminence upon which he found himself. Nothing could have stirred his interest very much except happening across some fresh sign of Ferris, whose trail had all day eluded him.

He rode into Kains' camp a half hour after Dave had departed, ed trailing the burdened stallion. He was met at once by Gallo carrying a rifle. Block S was prepared for trouble. Morgan had seen plenty of outfits in his time primed for battle and he read the wariness of this bunch plainly.

Morgan's eyes became bright hard and an excitement blazed in him that he could scarcely contain. He spurred his horse directly to Kains' side. What he had discovered at Piny Hollow should go a long way in reconciling Kains to the length of time he had taken with his ill-fated mission.

"Well!" Kains demanded. "Something I don't reckon you know, Tay. I rode past Prole's shack on the way in. The nester's moving on!"

The news struck Kains like a thunderclap. He came forward, seizing the bridle of Morgan's grulla. He was frowning darkly into the gunman's scullion face, not quite believing. And yet certain pieces were falling together into a pattern, adding up to make sense.

He recalled that Dave had refused help in burning Prole out, and a wicked smile widened his mouth. To Kains it was clear that Dave had made a deal with Prole. The nester might even have enlisted to give Dave his support. For a part of the range later, Prole would make this gesture of submission and even fight for Dave. This was what Dave conspired.

"Get back to Prole's shack and take care of Dave Sharadin," Kains ordered.

"How about Doc?"

"I'll leave Lockridge up to you. After what the pair of them did to Clay Green I don't care what you do to him. If you play this right you ought to be able to kill that nester while you're getting ride of Sharadin. Make it look like they shot each other. Leave 'em lying in the brush where you can find 'em. Make sure they're dead. Then you can take your place and let them know what you saw."

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'd like your opinion on my forthcoming marriage. I'm a 24-year-old man and I plan to be married in Easter, when we will both be past our eighteenth birthday. A few years ago, we were sweethearts since grammar school and know there can never be any one else for either of us. At our age, I think we're better fitted to take the hard knocks and bounce back. Our minds are definitely made up, but I would like your thoughts on the subject.

Dear Kathay: The success of married life depends on the emotional maturity of two people, not on their calendar age. Usually, these factors are the same, sometimes they differ quite widely. Many very young people make successful marriages, but they are in the minority. Marriage at an early age almost always means economic problems but if you are both willing to sacrifice for the common good of your home there is no doubt that you will succeed. And good luck to you!

Many Have Discovered Tom Poston

By CHARLES MERCER
NEW YORK (AP) — So many people have been "discovering" Tom Poston for a number of years that we might as well discover him too.

Since a "discovery" of Poston often results in his unemployment, he's somewhat reluctant to talk. But here goes anyway—

Poston is "the man in the street" who is regularly interviewed on the Steve Allen Show (NBC-TV, Sundays, 8 p. m. EST) and cannot remember his name.

It began when Poston went to audition as a comedian on the Allen Show. Among other roles he plays well is that of a drunk. Of course nobody would hear to a drunk entering millions of living rooms via TV.

So somebody said in effect, "Look, Poston, we'll start as a straight interview. Now, I ask you, 'What's your name?'"

Then Poston, the invertebrate actor, blinked and started and went through the frantic endeavor to remember his name. His questioner laughed and called in another man. The second man laughed too. So it went. All the way up to Steve Allen—whose laugh assured Poston of the job.

The Poston who appears on the Allen Show is only one of the numerous aspects of Poston.

After World War II service as a pilot, he studied acting and earned a precarious living for several years in road companies and TV soap operas. Finally he obtained a minor role in a Broadway play, "The Grand Prize."

The critics gave him rave notices—and the play folded.

Next ABC-TV "discovered" him, signing him as star of "Entertainment," a daily two and a half hour show. Critics liked Poston but blasted the SHOW. It went off the air after 13 weeks.

Poston returned to summer stock. "It was sort of like the market," he says. "I kept doing stock and I kept getting broker."

Then another "discovery." A Hollywood screen test: "To put it mildly," recalls Poston, "I was a bomb."

Next, he was "discovered" after playing a straight TV dramatic role. Again the critics applauded. "The reaction was great," he says. "I didn't work on TV again for a year."

His next Broadway-bound show, in which he personally was praised, floundered on its Boston try-out. Last season a similar pattern: raves for Poston but the show folded.

A few weeks ago Poston was hired as top banana for an off Broadway show, "The Best of Burlesque." He warned the producer that he was a jinx. But the show didn't fold. It's a success.

Anybody want to be an actor? Poston does. He's happily married, has a year-old daughter and a gray poodle. "It was a black poodle until it started worrying."

Refuses to Change Rape Conviction

to set aside the conviction of con-William J. Kirby yesterday refused to set aside the conviction of condemned Negro rapist Luther Bailey, 46, of Woodson.

Kirby rejected a petition for a writ of habeas corpus on behalf of Bailey, who is scheduled to be put to death in the state electric chair at Tucker prison farm. Granting of the petition would in effect have nullified the conviction for rape of a white woman at her home here the night of June 14, 1950.

Bailey's attorney, Thad Wilkins, said he would appeal Kirby's refusal to the Arkansas Supreme Court.

That would give another lease on life to Bailey, whose death sentence was affirmed by the state high court and refused a review by the United States Supreme Court.

No date now is pending for the scheduled electrocution. Setting one is the duty of Gov. Orval Faubus.

Prescott District, Dr. Johnson served the Magnolia, Monticello, Forest City, and Fort Smith districts as presiding elder, and pastored such leading churches in the state as St. Paul AME Church, Newport and Allen Temple AME Church, Pine Bluff.

Rev. R. T. Williams was transferred to the East Arkansas Conference and Rev. B. H. Johnson transferred to the Central Arkansas Conference. Rev. Crier will be succeeded by Rev. Green Paschal. The other changes were minor. All of the other larger churches of the conference received their same minister for this conference year.

Mrs. E. M. Nelson was re-elected conference superintendent of the Sunday School. Mrs. L. M. Davis was re-elected Conference Branch Secretary of the Missionary Department and Mrs. E. L. Hicks was re-elected Conference Branch Supervisor of the Young People's Department.

The newspaper said a top Pentagon official, unidentified, estimated that if all the feasible proposals were undertaken the total cost would not exceed 275 million dollars.

The White House staff and budget experts are examining the cost, international implications and possible harmful effect the project would have on the nation's rocket program, the story said.

Pentagon officials would not comment on the story, the Tribune said, but their sources, unnamed, were quoted as saying it was in it.

State Has 9,882 New Flu Cases

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — The State Board of Health today reported 9,882 new cases of an "influenza-like" disease in Arkansas for the week ending last Saturday.

Newton County reported 3,000 cases, Washington County 1,816, and Mississippi County, 1,037.

Counties with fewer cases were Arkansas 457, Boone 207, Bradley 100, Carroll 288, Clark 350, Cleburne 157, Columbia 53, Crawford 34, Drew 429, Fulton 123, Garland 136, Jackson 24, Jefferson 17, Johnson 709, Lafayette 124, Logan 43, Marion 220, Montgomery 356 and Pulaski 105.

The Pulaski County cases were in Greater Little Rock, two in Little Rock, 103 in North Little Rock.

Actor's Life on Night the Play Opens

By BOB THOMAS
NEW YORK (AP) — What happens to an actor on opening night of a Broadway show?

"Take the case of Ricardo Montalban, who just opened in the calypso caper, 'Jamaica.' Some of his ordeal is described in his feelings the moment before he went on stage:

"You talk about a man's life flashing before his eyes as he is drowning—that is exactly how I felt. I thought of everything: my mother, my father, my boyhood, dreams I have had.

"I thought what would happen if the play was a flop, how I would have to take my wife and four children back to California. I wondered if my voice would hold up. Then I heard the overture, and suddenly I was faced with that terrible moment of having to go on."

Ricardo's ordeal was made worse by a cold he had picked up during the tryout run in Boston. When he arrived at the Imperial theater at noon before opening night, his voice was hoarse. He did a run-through, whispering his lines and talking his songs.

Then he went home for a half-hour rest. He was back at the theater at 6:15.

"I always get there early," he explained. "I'm the kind of a guy who sleeps with three alarm clocks. I've always got to be sure I'll be there on time."

He started getting ready for the show at 6:30, aided by a dresser and makeup man.

"Between the acts, I felt terrible," Ricardo said. "I was depressed. I thought I wasn't getting across. I guess it was a natural letdown after five weeks' rehearsal and six weeks on the road. I determined I would try even harder in the second act."

When it was all over the applause at the curtain calls was heartening. Well-wishers jammed into his dressing room to offer congratulations.

Instead of Sardi's, Ricardo went to a small party given by a dentist friend on Park Avenue and dropped in at the Waldorf celebration for the cast given by his co-star, Lena Horne. From the others, Ricardo learned that the reviews were generally good.

Jamaica's slim plot was roundly knocked, but the Harold Arlen music and the jobs by Miss Horne and Ricardo were praised.

Ricardo got to bed by 4 and awakened to find me congratulating him and the assurance of a lengthy run.

"Coming back to the stage has been good for me," he reflected. "MGM spoils you; you get used to the red carpet and limousines waiting for you. On the stage, you learn to carry your own bags and live in hotel rooms, not suites. I think I'm much better equipped to face the future now."

Says U. S. to Launch Space Ship

CHICAGO, (UP) — The Chicago Tribune said today that President Eisenhower is actively considering a plan to launch a space ship bigger than Russia's Sputnik II by using big military rockets.

The New York Daily News, in a special dispatch from Washington, carried a similar story.

The Tribune's Washington story, quoting unnamed officials, said the earth satellite could be fired off within four months. It could circle the earth at a height averaging 600 miles. The newspaper stated and carry mice, guinea pigs or monkeys or other animals to provide information for scientists.

The plan, the Tribune said, was reported to be the most attractive and most immediately attainable of more than a dozen proposals being studied by the Pentagon for submission to the President.

The newspaper said a top Pentagon official, unidentified, estimated that if all the feasible proposals were undertaken the total cost would not exceed 275 million dollars.

The White House staff and budget experts are examining the cost, international implications and possible harmful effect the project would have on the nation's rocket program, the story said.

Pentagon officials would not comment on the story, the Tribune said, but their sources, unnamed, were quoted as saying it was in it.

Hope Over Magnolia 19-6 for Conference Victory

The Hope Bobcats are now back in the race for the AAA crown, and the Magnolia Panthers have just about faded out of the picture as a result of the Bobcats' 19-6 win over the Panthers in Magnolia last night. Jimmy May, end for the Bobcats, made two sensational catches for two of Hope's three touchdowns.

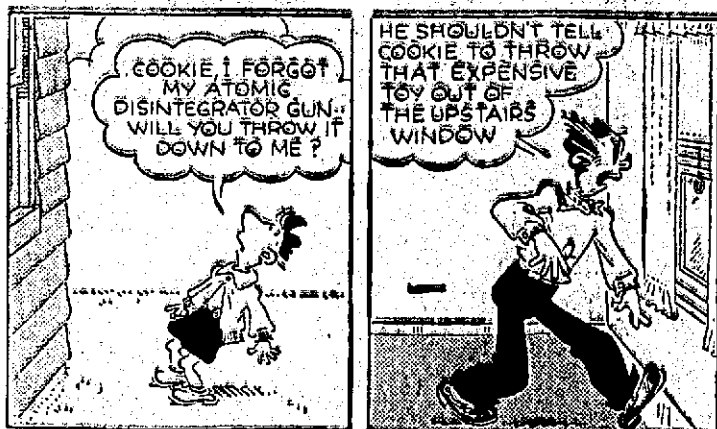

In the first quarter, Magnolia struck with a good show of power when Bland ran six yards for a touchdown. From that point on it was Hope all the way. Jimmy May made a great catch of one of Tommy Polk's passes and skirted 10 yards for Hope's first score. Jimmy Porterfield kicked the P. A. T., and Hope led 7-6. Q. B. Tommy Polk ran for 8 yards, and Hope's second T. D. of the night. The combination of Polk to May worked again in the third quarter when Polk hit May with a beautiful pass and May came down with the ball across the end zone despite the Panthers' defenders.

The game was an important one, because a loss by either team would have put them out of the title race.

UNDERWORLD FIGURE—A workman, making like a busy spider, puts the finishing touches on a huge spheric frame on which a modernistic outline of the world is featured in mesh and metal lines. The "shell of the world" will be one of the feature exhibits at the Nautical Show in Paris, France.

HOMEMAKER — Dorothy Green says acting is "just a hobby." Her real job is being a homemaker as the wife of a Hollywood dentist and mother of three children. Her latest film is "The Man of a Thousand Faces."

POLITICAL CRISIS — Premier-designate Guy Mollet speaks from the main rostrum, left, in the French National Assembly in Paris in a futile attempt to win approval of a new government. Whited-out members of the assembly represent France's 23 premiers since the end of World War II. Following Mollet's rejection, Felix Gaillard, 37-year-old finance minister in the last government, said that he would try to become the 24th postwar premier and end his country's month-old political crisis.

HANDY GIRL—Showing she is not all thumbs, Sheila Morrison demonstrates the technique for remote handling of radio-isotopes at the British Atomic Energy Authority Radio-Chemical Center in Amersham, England. She is working in a new extension of the center which opened recently. Increasing scope of the center's work and world-wide demands for its products necessitated the construction of more buildings.

IN THE LIMELIGHT—This stray dog stole the limelight from Britain's Queen Elizabeth for a brief moment at the Arlington (Va.) National Cemetery. He broke through the ranks of the guard line-up on the steps leading to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier just minutes before the Queen arrived. Unmindful of Army discipline, the pooch stands his ground as an officer (top, center) orders him to move. He later beat a hasty retreat.

FLU CUTS CLASSES—In a setting representative of many schools across the nation, Mrs. Fletcher Hargrove, eighth-grade arithmetic teacher at a Dallas, Tex., school, addresses only seven students from a class of 30. School and college attendance across the nation has been hard hit as the flu siege nears epidemic proportions in some sections. In Dallas County alone five schools have been closed and absenteeism is reported high at other schools.

SHOOTING FOR RECORD — S/Sgt. Shelman Angain, of Fayetteville, Ark., demonstrates an M-3 submachine gun equipped with a gunsight movie camera with a three-inch lens. The camera, which accurately records effectiveness of ground fire against low-flying aircraft, is being tested as part of Operation Textbook, at Fort Ord, Calif. The Army's Combat Development and Experimentation Center, at Fort Ord, is running extensive tests to attempt to determine what tactics and weapons it will take to fight a future war.

A popular proposal for space flight is solar radiation system that would collect sun's heat with optical systems to concentrate energy into working fluid. It delivers few pounds of thrust.
